History of Osteopathy

The principles of Osteopathy were announced by Dr. Andrew T. Still in 1874. For ten years he labored alone establishing the system. In 1894, with a few students he opened the American School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., no grown to a college of over seven hundred students. Ten other colleges have been founded by graduates of this school, some good, others mere diploma mills. The number of graduates of the standard schools now number over four thousand.

July 12 was set apart by the World's fair board as Osteopathic day, when two thousand osteopaths met in convention for a week's session.

Twenty-five states have passed laws regulating the practice. Legislation is to be asked for in many more states this winter, Oregon being one. To be a competent Osteopath requires a course equal to the medical schools in all branches and superior in some. Our legislature will doubtless come to the relief and pass a law requiring a strict examination, and so protect the people from charlatans, who in this state are numerous, to the danger and defrauding of the public, and to the injury of Osteopathy.

Until this law is passed ask for your Osteopath's diploma.

Christmas Activity

GREAT ACTIVITY AT THE PENDLETON WOOLEN MILLS.

The near approach of Christmas is evident if one will but go up to the Woollen Mills. There everything is bustle and activity. Every machine in the mill is being worked to its full capacity to fill the rush orders that have come in.

On one order alone from a firm in Gallup, New Mexico, it will require 1200 robes.

The money spent in advertising the past few years is just beginning to show returns and the Christmas trade for this year will be the largest in the history of the institution.

The requests for catalogues and information regarding those famous goods come from all over the world, and it is a common occurrence to have to call an express wagon to take the day's mail to the postoffice.

The number of these robes being forwarded on individual orders alone is sufficient to prove that these goods are more popular than ever for Christmas.

These orders come from points where the goods cannot be found in the local stores, and when these are added to the large numbers being distributed over the counters of the various stores throughout the country, Pendleton people can see what an interest has been created in the products of the local mills.

The garments have not been shown to the trade at large, yet the demand for this new line has far exceeded the capacity of the machines now installed.

At the present time more orders for these garments are on file than can possibly be turned out before Christmas.

Mr. Phillips, treasurer of the Root Newspaper Association, publishers of The Dry Goods Economist, The Dry Goodsman, The Dry Goods Reporter and the Pacific Merchant, called at the mills one day this week and upon seeing the Bath Robes, Lounging Robes, Smoking Jackets and Toboggan Coats now being manufactured, predicted a greater success for these garments than even the Indian Robes had been, and said if they were placed before the merchants next year he did not think the present mill would be able to turn out even cloth enough for the garments alone.

In making up Christmas lists Pendleton people should include something from our home town and thus help in a way to advertise not only the local institution, but the city of Pendleton as well.

Milwaukee has her beer; Grand Rapids her furniture, and Pendleton her Indian Robes and Blankets.

The East Oregonian is Eastern Oregon's representative paper. It leads and the people appreciate it and show it by their liberal patronage. It is the advertising medium of this section.
